Worthington board member, former OSBA president, wins NSBA office

The National School Boards Association (NSBA) Delegate Assembly elected Charlie Wilson, Worthington City, as the association's secretary-treasurer during the recent NSBA Annual Conference & Exposition in San Antonio. It is the highest NSBA office achieved by an Ohio school board member. Wilson was elected as a Central Region representative to NSBA's Board of Directors in 2014 and served as OSBA's president in 2013. He also served on the OSBA Board of Trustees, Executive Committee and numerous other regional and state committees. While ascension to the NSBA presidency is not automatic, the selection as secretary-treasurer traditionally provides a track to that office.

Association accepting proposed changes to its legislative platform

Every member board in the state is invited to propose changes to the OSBA Legislative Platform, which is posted at http://links.ohioschoolboards.org/43115. These proposals will be shared with the OSBA Legislative Platform Committee in August when it meets to develop recommendations on amendments for the Delegate Assembly to consider. If your board of education supports a plank you believe should be incorporated into the platform or has a suggestion for an amendment to an existing position, contact the OSBA Division of Legislative Services for more information. The deadline to submit proposals is June 15. The platform guides OSBA's advocacy efforts and conveys to legislators, policymakers, the public and the media where OSBA stands on a variety of issues facing public education.

Northeast Ohio board member named to State Board of Education

The governor has appointed Avon Lake City and Lorain County JVSD board member Charles Froehlich to the State Board of Education. Froehlich resigned from the Avon Lake and JVSD boards March 23 to take the state position. He replaces Kathleen McGervey, who resigned her Second District seat earlier this year. His appointment lasts until Dec. 31, when the seat's term expires.

Join in Ohio's statewide celebration of in-demand jobs

May 7-11 is In-Demand Jobs Week, a time for communities, educators and businesses to highlight the jobs, industries and skills that are in demand in Ohio. Schools can take part by planning events that inspire students to explore these careers in their communities. The Ohio Department of Education and its partners have developed a guide to help schools and districts plan those events at http://links.ohio schoolboards.org/89721. Once schools plan their events, they can share them on the In-Demand Jobs Week Facebook page. Visit the In-Demand Jobs Week webpage at http://links.ohioschoolboards. org/67551 to find additional information about in-demand occupations and more resources for this statewide celebration.

Ebright, an awardwinning writer, photographer and publication designer, retired from OSBA in 2011 after 26 years of service. Throughout his career, and even in retirement, he was a strong advocate for students, school board members and public education.

Students' parody seeks donations for new band uniforms

Members of Cincinnati City's Walnut Hills High School Marching Band turned to YouTube in their quest to raise money for new uniforms.

Students rewrote the lyrics to the Academy Award-nominated best original song "This Is Me" from the film "The Greatest Showman" to encourage donations. The video shows students dancing in the school's hallways and on the football field. Watch it at http://links.ohioschoolboards.org/60035.

"While our uniforms may look fine from a distance, many are beyond repair because of worn fabric, torn and broken zippers and snaps, and years of mending and cleaning," the band members wrote on their fundraising page.

him with education stakeholders across the state. The nonpartisan agency helps members of the Ohio General Assembly with legislation drafting, research, budget and fiscal analysis, training and other services.

"While spending eight years at LSC, specifically in education, I saw a lot of changes going on and really saw the impact it was having around the state," Schwartz said. "Part of my job was attending stakeholder meetings, and I met with a lot of board members, administrators and parents and heard their concerns."

Schwartz didn't believe his career path would steer him away from LSC until he had an opportunity to help advocate on behalf of Ohio's more than 3,400 public school board members and the more than 700 districts they govern.

The Forest Hills Local (Hamilton) graduate joined OSBA as a lobbyist in January, a role once filled by Jennifer Hogue, who was promoted to director of legislative services. Jay Smith, the deputy director of legislative services, also is part of the association's legislative team.

Schwartz's duties include lobbying the General Assembly on behalf of Ohio public education, tracking legislation and testifying before legislative committees. He also monitors Ohio Department of Education activities and works with the OSBA Legislative

Transportation State Reports and Cost Analysis

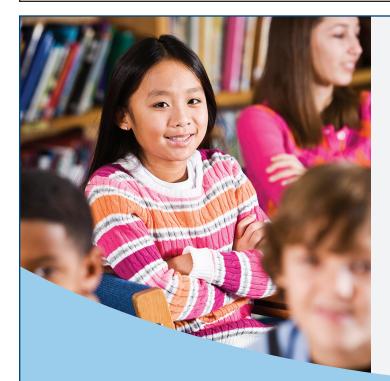

Wednesday, April 25 • 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. • Cost is $95 OSBA office, Columbus

Your district transportation funding depends upon the reports that you fill out and submit to the state — including the T-1 and the T-2. An error on either of these reports can have a significant impact on your district's funding.

Join us for a session that will delve into appropriate data collection, what you need to track and why, and how to collate that data into an accurate state report. We will review the calendar deadlines and best practices that you need to know to successfully file your reports and get accurate funding.

We also will share how to use this data to perform a district cost analysis and show you where to find the state average data from the previous year to determine if your district is operating efficiently.

Whether you are new to transportation or a veteran, or if you work in the transportation office or the treasurer's office, this class will provide the tools you need to file reports correctly and get all the funding your district is entitled to. Platform Committee and Delegate Assembly.

"There's really nobody I'd rather advocate for than OSBA," Schwartz said. "I agree with the policies, the platforms and the association's work, and I don't think anyone other than OSBA would be able to get me to leave LSC."

Schwartz's legislative background includes a congressional internship in Washington, D.C. While there, he also worked as a production intern for an Arabic TV station.

Schwartz graduated from Miami University with a Bachelor of Arts in international studies, with an emphasis on Middle East and Islamic studies. His education included spending a summer in Amman, the capital of Jordan, where he studied Arabic. Outside of class, he was active in student government and organizations, and political parties. "Will is a great addition to our team," Hogue said. "His extensive education policy knowledge, coupled with the relationships he has built with members and staff of the General Assembly, have allowed him to hit the ground running."

Schwartz and his wife, Allie, have been married for more than a year, and enjoy time with their dog, Layla, a boxer-Labrador retriever mix.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

by Jay Smith, deputy director of legislative services

Bill would substantially change Ohio School Report Card

Rep. Mike Duffey (R-Worthington) recently introduced legislation, House Bill (HB) 591, that would make substantial changes to the annual Ohio School Report Cards. The bill, which was introduced after several stakeholder meetings, is designed to create a system that is understandable, provides value and can be trusted by school districts, parents and legislators.

The proposed system presents data as raw scores, which can be viewed as percentiles. It also prohibits the use of performance indicators, which have been a point of contention due to the lack of clarity in computing results.

HB 591 proposes a new state report card system, without the use of letter grades, to assess student performance. The legislation would establish seven separate performance measures for school districts, school buildings, charter schools, STEM schools and collegeprep boarding schools. These measures include state test results, graduation rates, student growth, closing gaps for vulnerable populations, third-grade reading, college or career-readiness, and enrichment and support measures. Duffey envisions that the system would continue to use a dashboard approach that presents transparent and easily digestible information.

The test results measure includes results from staterequired achievement assessments, national standardized assessments measuring college and careerreadiness and high school end-ofcourse exams.

The graduation rates measure includes four- and five-year graduation rates, the percentage of special education students who have an individualized education program and have not yet graduated and the percentage of students who have dropped out. It also includes the percentage of students who graduated in the year prior to the report card who have been admitted to a higher education institution, are gainfully employed, have enlisted in the military, are participating in an apprenticeship program or are unemployed.

The current student growth measure, otherwise known as the progress measure, uses a methodology involving a complex formula that is not disclosed to stakeholders and often is skewed or confusing. HB 591 proposes to convey the amount of progress a student has made over the school year using a methodology that enables school districts to validate and replicate the results. The proposal prohibits the use of a proprietary formula and must include an explanation of factors that influence student growth beyond the classroom, including parental and community influence and student attitude.

The measure for closing gaps for vulnerable populations includes a graphic representation of comparative performance trends. The data must be presented for each student subgroup in a district or school by the subgroup's raw score and the percentile ranking relative to all other students in that subgroup statewide.

The third-grade reading measure would be based on student performance and the percentage of students who are not retained under the third-grade reading guarantee.

The college and career-readiness measure includes the percentage of students who have taken a national standardized college admission test and the percentage of those students who have attained remediation-free scores. This measure also includes the percentage of students who receive at least 12 points of industryrecognized credentials; the average amount of Advanced Placement (AP) class credit earned per student; the average scores on AP Continued on page 7

Central Ohio district honored for innovative technology

Pickerington Local (Fairfield) received recognition for its innovative technology at the National School Boards Association's (NSBA) Annual Conference and Exposition held earlier this month in San Antonio.

The district was one of 45 nationwide to receive a Digital School District Survey Award, which recognizes "innovating in exemplary ways by investing in tools and learning models for the next-generation learners," according to a news release.

The Center for Digital Education honors districts annually for digital learning initiatives, expanded STEM instruction and labs, and more.

"School boards are embracing technology initiatives that help them govern more effectively and empower their districts to operate more efficiently," NSBA Executive Director and Chief Executive Officer Thomas J. Gentzel said in the news release. "The variety of districts recognized by this survey, in both size and 'urbanicity,' serve as examples for others who want to introduce innovative approaches within their communities."

tests by subject; the average scores on International Baccalaureate assessments by subject; the average amount of college credits earned per student through the College Credit Plus program; and the percentage of students who enlisted in the military after graduation.

The enrichment and support measure includes the percentage of students who have been screened and identified as gifted and the percentage of students identified as gifted who are receiving services that meet their needs and are consistent with their areas of identification. In addition, as a voluntary component, districts are able to report the total number and number per 100 students of reading intervention specialists, school librarians, art teachers, music teachers and AP courses offered.

The bill modifies the existing report card for career-technical schools to include measures of achievement, graduation rates, post-program outcomes and prepared for success.

HB 591 maintains the existing report card system for current law provisions affected by letter grades or ratings. However, as previously mentioned, the bill prohibits including letter grades or ratings on the report card under the new system. Letter grades or ratings would continue to affect the establishment and administration of academic distress commissions, state academic intervention, eligibility for school vouchers and charter schools. Duffey indicated during his sponsor testimony that this is an area he intentionally left out of the bill draft, because he thought it would be best to discuss it during committee hearings.

In addition, the bill eliminates several annual reports and nongraded measures associated with the existing report card system.

The bill is being heard in the House Education and Career Readiness Committee.
