Ex-OSU quarterback appointed to State Board of Education

Gov. John Kasich has named Stanley Jackson to fill a seat on the State Board of Education. He replaces Dennis Reardon, who resigned in June. The former Ohio State University (OSU) football player will serve the final six months of the at-large term. Jackson is Kasich's eighth appointment to the State Board of Education. There are 11 elected and eight appointed members on the board.

Learn about the lighter side of politics at Capital Conference

The 2012 OSBA Capital Conference is packed full of opportunities to learn about important education issues, but the comedy troupe The Capitol Steps will provide some levity when it performs at the third General Session. Always in top form during presidential election years, the Washington-based group draws on experience working on Capitol Hill to craft sidesplitting satire. Members of the troupe have appeared on "Good Morning America," "Nightline" and National Public Radio's "All Things Considered," among other TV and radio programs. The conference is Nov. 11-14 in Columbus. For details, visit www.ohioschoolboards.org/2012-capital-conference.

OSBA launches 11th annual Media Honor Roll

The OSBA Media Honor Roll helps districts establish good working relationships with their local media outlets by offering them a way to recognize reporters and news organizations for providing fair, accurate coverage of schools. Those relationships are very important because reporters have the power to shape and influence community attitudes about public schools. Details on the 2012 Media Honor Roll will soon be emailed to all superintendents and Ohio School Public Relations Association members. Information also will be available in August at www.ohioschoolboards.org/media-honorroll.

Study finds nearly 1 in 3 recent grads are unemployed

A newly released national survey of recent high school graduates found that almost one in three are unemployed, while another 15% are working part time while seeking full-time employment. The Rutgers University survey of 2006 through 2011 graduates also found that just 27% of them hold full-time jobs. The survey is posted at <http://links.ohioschoolboards.org/43955>.

Samaritan Food Donation Act. The law, which protects donors to food banks from all criminal and civil liability, did not previously extend that protection to public schools, but now does. The change in law applies to public schools participating in the national school lunch program, as well as local educational agencies.

School administrators, staff embrace digital devices

Teachers and school administrators are more likely than the general public to use smart phones or tablet computers, says a new report by the nonprofit education group Project Tomorrow. About 70% of district-level administrators use smart phones, compared to 40% of the general public. The report, which indicates the role of new mobile technology in schools is becoming clearer, can be found at <http://links.ohioschoolboards.org/20015>.

Mentor EV teacher competing for world fitness crown

A Mentor EV teacher will be one of 45 men from around the world competing for the title of "The Fittest on the Earth," and a $1 million prize in the Reebok CrossFit Games.

Scott Panchik, a health and physical education teacher at Mentor High School, will participate in the strength and fitness event held July 13-15 and televised on ESPN. After a series of regional contests that started with more than 50,000 competitors, Panchik now is ranked 15th out of 45 final contenders.

"I'm still a little humbled to have the opportunity to compete," said Panchik, who also is a strength and conditioning coach for the high school football team.

He said he has received strong school and community support.

This month in OSBA history

On July 31, 1969, the OSBA Executive Committee adopted a resolution congratulating Neil Armstrong, a proud product of Ohio public schools and the first man to walk on the moon. The honor came just 11 days after the historic event. The resolution, which also recognized the space pioneer's crewmates, Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins, was engraved on a plaque and sent to Armstrong. Two years after walking on the moon, Armstrong walked across the stage at the OSBA Capital Conference as a General Session speaker.

NEWS

OSBA offers 'summer special' for facilitated workshops, retreats

Remember the days when summer break meant a long vacation? For most board members and administrators, the summers have become just as useful for getting work done. Perhaps that work is accomplished in a more "dressed down" atmosphere with the fans blowing, but the work doesn't stop. Assessment of the past year's progress, goal setting, performance planning and evaluation are often on the summer priority list.

Summer board retreats and workshops provide the opportunity to discuss topics in greater depth, address challenges, get to know administrative team members better, discuss new ideas and projects, or rework processes that need board review or feedback.

The OSBA Division of School Board Services is pleased to present an opportunity for members during the remainder of the summer. During July and August, OSBA is offering discounted professional facilitation of your leadership team's summer retreat or workshop. For a price significantly less than our normal customized workshop, an OSBA school board services consultant will work with your board and superintendent to outline and facilitate a three-hour agenda that will help you be fully ready for the new school year. Districts that schedule their facilitated summer retreat during July or August may do so for the reduced rate of only $600, plus travel expenses.

If you wish to discuss or book your board's summer workshop using OSBA's professional facilitators, call OSBA's school board services division at (614) 540-4000 or (800) 589-OSBA while openings are still available.

Need arbitration and SERB representation? Remember OSBA!

OSBA is dedicated to providing school districts with quality arbitration and SERB representation at a reasonable cost.

Our professional labor team is highly trained in the law and labor relations. We have represented a large number of school districts.

Our emphasis is on quality service and assistance at a reasonable price. We offer a flat rate for all arbitration and SERB representation matters — just $2,000 per case, plus mileage. No law firm can beat that price!

AG's office offers Public records mediation program

Though the General Assembly completed work on the mid-biennial review (MBR) legislation and has officially recessed for summer break, activity at the Statehouse continues. Below is an update on a new public records mediation program announced by the Ohio attorneygeneral and the initial fiscal year (FY) 2014-15 budget guidance issued by the Ohio Office of Budget and Management (OBM) to state agencies.

Public records mediation program

Ohio Attorney General (AG) Mike DeWine recently announced he was initiating a mediation program to help resolve disputes between local governments and individuals requesting public records.

resolve disputes before parties turn to time-consuming and costly litigation."

To be eligible for the program, the party involved must be a local government entity, such as county and city governments, township boards of trustees, school boards and village councils, among others.

"The attorneys in my office spend a considerable amount of time and energy ensuring that state entities fully comply with their public records obligations and resolve public records disputes without the need for litigation," DeWine stated. "My hope is that this mediation program will provide local government entities and records requesters a similar opportunity to resolve public records disputes quickly and easily, and without the need for litigation."

Streetsboro students build, race solar-powered cars

A group of Streetsboro City students capped off the school year with a popular project — one that involved constructing and racing solar-powered cars.

Eighth-graders at Streetsboro Middle School built the cars, about a foot long, under the guidance of science teacher Laurie McNicholas.

Students were given a small solar panel, motor and gears, then instructed how to construct a car.

“We do it step by step,”

McNicholas told a local newspaper. “It’s a small enough project that you can do it in three weeks.”

Money to buy the equipment came from a $3,500 grant and many items are reused the following year. Students also use household items like cardboard, tissue boxes and duct tape as construction materials.

McNicholas said students build their cars by using “all the science and math skills that we’ve used all year.”

About 160 students participated in the third-annual solar car race in the school’s parking lot. The track was 60 feet long, and two cars competed in each race. The double-elimination tournament was followed by an awards ceremony.

“The students are so into it,” McNicholas said. “They can’t wait for the race.”

beginning FY 2013, Gov. John Kasich and OBM are beginning work on the FY 2014-15 biennial budget proposal they will be submitting to the General Assembly for consideration next year. OBM recently released guidance to state agencies asking General Revenue Fund (GRF) agencies to submit scenarios for flat funding and a 10% reduction (100% and 90% of FY 2013 general revenue fund appropriations). It’s important to note that about 40% of the state’s GRF goes to K-12 education.

This is the first step in developing the budget. This will be the first budget process all of the governor’s staff will be in place. That means they will be able to work together throughout the process, rather than within the compressed time line they faced as a new administration during development of the FY 2012-2013 budget.

A new requirement for this budget is that state agencies must submit requests for spending and statutory language changes at the same time. According to OBM Director Tim Keen statutory language changes previously ran through a separate process. Now, changes to spending and language will be requested simultaneously.

Again, these are initial steps in the development of the governor’s budget proposal. According to the guidance, non-Cabinet agency budget and language requests are due to OBM by 5 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 17. Cabinet agency budget and language requests are due to OBM by 5 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 1. Legislative and judicial agencies and constitutional officeholders are required to submit requests by 5 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 1.

For the latest legislative updates, please contact the OSBA legislative services division at (800) 589-6722.
