Poverty among Ohio’s schoolchildren is not abating, with the percentage of kids receiving subsidized school meals this school year the same as it was in the 2010-11 school year, The Columbus Dispatch recently reported. Citing figures from the Ohio Department of Education, the paper said that more than 800,000 children, or 44% of Ohio students, are currently participating in the federal free and reduced-price lunch program. Ten years ago, 33% of Ohio students were enrolled in the program. According to the Children’s Hunger Alliance, childhood hunger impairs learning, increases school absences and causes health, behavioral and emotional problems.

Data just released by the National Center for Education Statistics show the U.S. public high school on-time graduation rate for the class of 2011 reached 80%, an all-time high. The increase was fueled by substantial gains achieved by minority students, according to the Center for Public Education. From 2008 to 2011, the rate for Hispanic students increased from 64% to 75%; for black students, the rate rose from 61% to 67%. Visit http://links.ohioschoolboards.org/46880 for further information.

The Lion of Judah Academy, a now-closed Cleveland charter school, owes Ohio taxpayers $1.29 million, Auditor of State Dave Yost said in financial audits released Feb. 13. The auditor’s findings cited school leaders for accepting kickbacks, having unlawful interests in public contracts and making unsupported and unallowable expenditures and unsupported bank withdrawals. Five administrators were indicted last year in connection with the audits, including former treasurer Carl Shye, who is in federal prison after being convicted of stealing federal funds from other Ohio charter schools. The Lion of Judah case against Shye is still pending.

The National Education Policy Center reports that enrollment in charter schools managed by for-profit firms, as well as nonprofit education management groups, continues to rise, despite little evidence showing positive results. Students across 35 states and the District of Columbia attend schools managed by these entities. The full report is available at http://links.ohioschoolboards.org/85278.

Dr. Mike Thomson will be the General Session speaker at OSBA’s 2014 Board Leadership Institute, May 2-3 in Columbus. Thomson has spoken on leadership and problem-solving strategies before millions of educators and business leaders around the world. The institute also features 18 breakout sessions, two luncheons and plenty of opportunities to network with other board members from around the state, as well as OSBA staff. For details, visit http://links.ohio.schoolboards.org/33166.

Moderators sought for Capital Conference workshops

OSBA is recruiting moderators for breakout sessions at the 2014 Capital Conference, scheduled for Nov. 9-12 in Columbus. Moderators introduce workshop presenters, act as liaisons between the audience and speakers and collect evaluation forms. Board members serving as moderators will earn five OSBA Award of Achievement credits. Contact Judy Morgan at (614) 540-4000, (800) 589-OSBA or jmorgan@ohioschoolboards.org for details.

Two Ohio public schools earn U.S. ‘Green Ribbon’ status

Two Ohio public schools have been selected as honorees for the 2014 U.S. Green Ribbon Schools award. They are being honored for their work to produce energy-efficient, sustainable and healthy school environments for their students, schools and communities. The schools are Milton-Union EV’s Pre-K-12 School and West Geauga Local’s (Geauga) West Geauga High School. The school districts will be recognized by the U.S. Department of Education in April. Ohio is one of the 39 states participating in the 2014 Green Ribbon Schools recognition program.

Ohio student, cancer survivor skates with the Blue Jackets

A Licking Valley Local (Licking) student was recently honored by the Columbus Blue Jackets for his battle with cancer and given the unique opportunity to skate with the hockey team. Griffin Hayden, an eighth-grade student at Licking Valley Middle School, was one of 11 young cancer patients selected to be honored at the annual Black Tie Blue Jackets Style Show. After learning Hayden played hockey, the Columbus Blue Jackets Foundation invited him to skate with the team following a morning practice.

“It was definitely cool to get to hang out with the pros and see what that’s like,” Griffin told a local newspaper.

His mother, Carrie Hayden, said Griffin was diagnosed with acute myeloid leukemia last year and he is now in remission.

Call for conference breakout session proposals!

The hallmark of the OSBA Capital Conference is the educational programming. Breakout sessions feature practical advice that attendees can take back to their districts. The conference offers sessions on innovative programs, cost-saving strategies, key legislation and other timely and important topics.

OSBA is now accepting proposals for breakout sessions for the 2014 Capital Conference. Proposals will be selected based on strong interest, relevance, creativity, innovation, proven success and practical, how-to information.

The deadline for proposals is 5 p.m. on March 17. We encourage online nominations, but paper submissions will be accepted. Download a nomination form at the website below.

Visit www.ohioschoolboards.org/nominate-a-session to submit your proposal today!

Promoting creativity in the classroom

Elmer's Products provides teachers the means to replicate projects found in the Elmer's Teacher Tool Kit catalog in their own classrooms. These projects make creative use of common teaching aids, approach curriculum from an imaginative angle or tie nontraditional concepts together to illustrate commonalities.

Maximum awards: $500
Eligibility: K-12 teachers
Deadline: April 30
Contact: kinf.org/elmers/2014_application.php

Fostering a healthy lifestyle

The ING Run For Something Better National School awards program provides grants to schools that wish to establish a school-based running program or expand an existing one. Through activity plans created by the National Association for Sport and Physical Education, the awards program offers children a healthy start to life and fosters their desire to exercise before obesity begins.

Maximum awards: $3,500
Eligibility: 501(c)(3) organizations, including schools
Deadline: no later than May 31
Contact: www.orangelaces.com/get-school-grant

Captain Planet Foundation grants

The Captain Planet Foundation and the Ray C. Anderson Foundation will award grants to engage children in inquiry-based projects in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) fields that use innovation, biomimicry/nature-based design or include new uses for technology to address environmental problems in their communities. Ideal projects integrate environmental education with opportunities for children to solve real-world problems by using science practices and technology to help care for the environment.

Maximum awards: $2,500
Eligibility: 501(c)(3) organizations, including schools
Deadline: no later than May 31

Management Development Series #1:

Negotiations 101

Friday, March 14
OSBA office, Columbus
10 a.m. to 2 p.m.
Cost is $90

Why do schools bargain with employee unions? How do negotiations work? What are the differences between traditional bargaining and interest-based bargaining? What happens at impasse? If any or all of these questions are on your mind, this workshop is intended for you. Negotiations 101 is designed for anyone unfamiliar with collective bargaining in Ohio’s public schools. We will cover negotiations from beginning to end. Our focus will be on the entire context of negotiations, from Ohio law and the State Employment Relations Board through team selection, proposal/counterproposal development, at-the-table negotiations, impasse procedures and different bargaining methods. There will be ample time for questions and answers.

Whether you are an administrator or board member, if collective bargaining is new to you or you don’t understand all parts of the process, this workshop will improve your knowledge and skills in this complex area. Presenters will be Van D. Keating, director of management services, and Renee L. Fambro, deputy director of labor relations, OSBA.

Pupil Transportation Administrator Training Program #4
Emergency planning
Wednesday, April 9 • 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. • $90 • OSBA office, Columbus
A transportation department must have a viable emergency plan in place. These plans should be documented and include not only the routine crisis incidents that occur in this industry (breakdowns, sick children, minor accidents), but also the major events we hope will never happen. Learn how to identify what should be included in an emergency plan, how to develop the action plans and how to make a plan that anyone can follow, even in your absence.

Pupil Transportation Administrator Training Program #5
Fleet compliance
Wednesday, May 7 • 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. • $90 • OSBA office, Columbus
This class will focus on bus maintenance and safety checks, compliance with Ohio State Highway Patrol inspections and how to make the best use of the driver pre-trip inspection. We also will delve into the value of a preventive maintenance plan, bus purchasing and using alternative fuels.

OSBA Contract Analysis Service
OSBA provides a cost-effective professional analysis of both certified and classified collective bargaining agreements. These written reviews serve as a critique of current contract provisions, suggest potential pitfalls regarding legal compliance and provide specific recommendations as you go into your next round of collective bargaining.

Contact Renee L. Fambro, deputy director of labor relations, at (614) 540-4000 or (800) 589-OSBA for more information.
What board members need to know about value-added information in practice in Ohio

Value-added information was first introduced in Ohio in 2002, but are you aware of its significance for your district, teachers and students? If your answer is “No,” or “I am not sure,” you are not alone.

These two-hour regional seminars will shed some light on value-added information and help inform local policy decisions that impact student learning. Learn how your district can use value-added information to its benefit.

OSBA’s Federal Relations Network (FRN) members joined more than 750 school board and state school boards association leaders in Washington, D.C., Feb. 2-4 to advocate for Ohio’s view on federal education initiatives.

Joining the Ohio FRN delegation to help lobby on Capitol Hill were OSBA staff members Richard Lewis, executive director; Damon Asbury, director of legislative services; Michelle Francis, then-deputy director of legislative services; and Jay Smith, lobbyist.

Council of Urban Boards of Education (CUBE) members are eligible to attend the conference, and three Ohio CUBE members participated this year. They were Veronica Sims, Akron City; Alexander Poccia Kuhns, Cincinnati City; and Adil T. Bagirov, Dayton City.

The National School Boards Association’s (NSBA) Federal Relations Network is a national grassroots advocacy network to which Ohio members are appointed by OSBA to serve as education advocates at the national level. OSBA appoints two FRN members from each of Ohio’s 16 congressional districts.

This year, NSBA’s FRN conference was reconstituted as the NSBA Advocacy Institute with a focus on building year-round advocates for public education and local school governance in public, legal and legislative arenas.

Participants focused on encouraging investments in public education that support local efforts to continue to raise student achievement, as well as appropriate funding for mandates such as the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) and Title I. Members also advocated for the Local School Board Governance and Flexibility Act, House Resolution 1386, which recognizes the benefits of local school district governance and ensures that maximum local flexibility and decision making are not eroded through actions taken by the U.S. Department of Education. In addition, members urged congress to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary

Black Caucus seeking scholarship applications

The OSBA Black Caucus is accepting applications for the 2014 Leo Lucas Stipend, a program that provides graduating African-American seniors funds for college. The program is named for the late Leo Lucas, a Dayton City school board member and educator who founded the caucus. Forms are posted at www.ohioschoolboards.org/ohio-black-caucus. The application deadline is March 14. For more information, contact Candice L. Christon at (614) 540-4000 or cchriston@ohioschoolboards.org.
Education Act (ESEA).

The conference opened with remarks from NSBA President David A. Pickler, who serves on the Shelby County Board of Education in Collierville, Tenn., and NSBA Executive Director Thomas J. Gentzel.

Pickler and Gentzel told attendees they came to Washington at an opportune time to influence members on Capitol Hill. They shared their vision on how to champion major policy issues confronting local school districts. Under a new NSBA campaign termed “Army of Advocates,” Gentzel asked school boards to stand up to “those who abandon student achievement and sell off public schools and end local school board governance for their own profit.” He went on to detail some of NSBA’s new advocacy initiatives.

Pickler and Gentzel were followed by two separate panel discussions. The first was made up of representatives from the Cato Institute, American Federation for Children and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The speakers, representing organizations with differing points of view, discussed their visions of public education and how public forums impact advocacy for public education.

The second panel focused on information and insight obtained from the annual Phi Delta Kappa/Gallup Poll, the Public’s Attitudes Toward the Public Schools. The poll surveyed parents’ positive attitudes toward local public schools and negative views surrounding public education. A Washington Post education reporter also discussed how silence empowers critics of public schools, enabling them to define the education debate. The panel included Lisa Bushey, NSBA.

OSBA Student Achievement Fair

Tuesday, Nov. 11, 2014 • Greater Columbus Convention Center

The OSBA Capital Conference Student Achievement Fair highlights outstanding initiatives from school districts across the state. OSBA is seeking fresh, innovative programs or practices your district is willing to share with thousands of Ohio school district representatives. One hundred programs and practices will be selected based on creativity and impact on student achievement. The fair will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 11, during the OSBA Capital Conference.

Five performing groups from around Ohio will be selected to entertain attendees during the Student Achievement Fair. To be considered, you must submit an audio or video recording of the performing group. DVDs or CDs can be mailed to OSBA or a video or MP3 can be submitted with the online application.

OSBA is now accepting nominations for district programs and performing groups. While multiple programs may be submitted for consideration, no more than two per district will be selected, so districts should prioritize their submissions.

Nominate your district at www.ohioschoolboards.org/saf-nominations. The nomination deadline is June 27.

associate executive director; Brandon Busteed, Gallup Education executive director; and Valerie Strauss, education correspondent with The Washington Post.

The second day of the conference began with remarks from Reginald M. Felton, NSBA interim associate executive director. Following his remarks, NSBA’s lobbying team of Felton; Deborah Rigsby, director of federal legislation; and Lucy Gettman, director of federal programs, highlighted NSBA’s message to Congress.

After members heard from the lobbyists, Francisco Negron Jr., NSBA associate executive director and general counsel, discussed how the U.S. Department of Education is using its administrative discretion to drive the education agenda, as well as the potential impact of recent court decisions on school districts.

FRN members also attended in-depth sessions covering the following issues:
- social media;
- building relationships with legislators;
- NSBA legal advocacy;
- essential media training for board members;
- the NSBA public advocacy campaign;
- developments in education reform related to the Common Core and teacher evaluations;
- IDEA reauthorization.

The second day of the conference concluded with keynote speaker Dr. Bernice King, inspirational orator, author and a daughter of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

After intense preparation, it was off to Capitol Hill on the third day, where FRN members met with their members of Congress and congressional aides to press the point that the federal education agenda must reflect the needs of public schoolchildren in school districts across Ohio and the nation.

In addition to individual meetings with congressional offices, Ohio’s FRN delegation met with Ohio Sens. Sherrod Brown (D) and Rob Portman (R). They shared personal stories from their school districts about the impact of federal mandates, including the lack of funding for IDEA and Title I, and the need for ESEA reauthorization.

Thanks to the hard work of our Ohio delegation, the inaugural NSBA Advocacy Institute was a successful one. The following Ohio FRN members participated in the conference:
- OSBA President and FRN chair Susie Lawson, Tri-County ESC and Wayne County Schools Career Center;
- OSBA President-elect Ed Penrod, Logan-Hocking Local (Hocking) and Tri-County Career Center;
- OSBA Immediate Past President Sharon E. Manson, Waverly City and Pike County Career Technology Center;
- Bruce Alexander, Akron City;
- Walter S. Armes, Whitehall City;
- Denise Baba, Streetsboro City;
- Gary L. Baker II, Columbus City;
- Dr. Marguerite Bennett, Mount Vernon City and Knox County Career Center;
- Larry L. Besecker, Darke County ESC and Miami Valley Career Technology Center;
- Robert L. Faulkner Sr., Warren City and Trumbull Career & Technical Center;
- Eric Germann, Lincolnview Local (Van Wert);
- Terry Groden, North Olmsted City;
- Albert Haberstroh, Trumbull County ESC;
- John W. Halkias, Plain Local (Stark);
- Linda Haycock, Shawnee Local (Allen);
- Robert M. Heard Sr., Cleveland Municipal;
- Katie McNeil, Middletown City and Butler Tech;
- Ken Morlock, Madison-Plains Local (Madison);
- Martha Murray, Sandusky City;
- Ruth M. Nau, Noble Local (Noble);
- John Pennycuff, Winton Woods City;
- Randall E. Smith, Forest Hills Local (Hamilton);
- Warren Stevens, Urbana City and Ohio Hi-Point Career Center;
- Bob Vasquez, Toledo City.
With differing opinions on what should be contained in legislation addressing additional school calamity days, the legislative process continues without a consensus between the Ohio House of Representatives and the Ohio Senate. That means a conference committee must work out the differences.

By a vote of 56-39, the Ohio House on Feb. 26 refused to concur with the Senate version of Amended Substitute House Bill 416, which would have provided schools additional excused calamity days.

Earlier that same day, the Senate Education Committee adopted a substitute version of House Bill 416. The Senate version would have required the Ohio Department of Education to waive up to four additional days due to a calamity, such as hazardous weather conditions, for the 2013-2014 school year, provided that the district follow its own contingency plan for making up five unwaived calamity days. The board of education, by resolution, must signal its intent to request the additional waived days. The House had previously approved two additional calamity days and two permissive professional days for all staff, but did not require the use of the contingency plan.

During consideration on the Senate floor, an additional amendment was added to change the four calamity days to three plus one professional development day and require schools to use four of their contingency days before being able to use the additional calamity days. The substitute bill passed the Senate unanimously.

As passed by the Senate, the bill also contains the following provisions (all apply to the 2013-14 school year):

Springfield City plans to bolster problem-based learning

Springfield City plans to expand its curriculum to offer more real-world, problem-based learning opportunities for high school students.

Superintendent Dr. David C. Estrop said the district will roll out a problem-based learning curriculum at Springfield High School’s Health and Human Services Academy, and possibly its STEM Academy as well. The high school is home to five learning academies.

“The problems they’ll have to solve will require them to use skills from all the fields they are studying, but in a very hands-on way, a very applied way,” Estrop told a local newspaper.

He said the education will be modeled after the curriculum format used at the Global Impact STEM Academy at Clark State Community College; the school district is an academy partner.

Mike Skavaril, principal of the Health and Human Services Academy, said problem-based learning will benefit Springfield City students.

“We kind of tie the words ‘21st century learners’ to it, using technology more and collaborating in teams,” he told a local newspaper. “We’ll focus on making them more effective communicators and improving their critical-thinking skills. They will talk to experts in the field and get used to working with them.”

- Authorization for schools to make up unwaived calamity days by lengthening one or more other school days in half-hour increments. This provision also was in the House-passed version.
- Permission for school districts to update their contingency plans at any time during the current school year and include in their plans online lessons or paper lesson “blizzard bags” as a means to make up time the school was closed due to a public calamity.
- A requirement for the Ohio Department of Education to accept and consider applications for making up unwaived calamity days using online lessons and paper lesson blizzard bags at any time after Aug. 1, 2013.
- Permission for a school district to excuse graduating 12th-grade students from attending school for any time the students’ schools are open for instruction after the scheduled graduation ceremony or culminating event as a result of that time being added to the school calendar to make up for missed days.
- Extension of the deadlines to return elementary achievement assessment scores to June 16 for third-grade assessments and June 30 for all other assessments. This provision also was in the House-passed version with an earlier deadline for returning scores on all other assessments.

Conference committee members were named on Feb 26. While it is anticipated the committee will meet soon, full voting sessions of the House and Senate are not scheduled until March 12.

Until the governor has signed the legislation into law, school leaders should continue to follow their district’s current policies on calamity days.

If you have questions about changes to the calamity days legislation or any other legislative issues, please contact the OSBA Division of Legislative Services at (800) 589-OSBA.
